

Animal Project

Each student has their own folder filled with the paperwork they need to complete their project. Everything needs to be done in their very best handwriting. We are working on most of the project at school, but we'll need a little help from home with research. Another piece of this project will be completed in the computer lab with Mr. Regalado. It should be fun!

Next Tuesday, March 27th, the kids will be given a poster board (I have those) and we'll take the information they have gathered (the papers in their folders) and they will cut, glue, and create a poster board displaying all they know about their animal. I know... sounds wonderfully messy, risky, and like a whole lot of fun! I'm not sure if I'm crazy, but I want to see how they do putting their own boards together. I have help arranged, so I have backup. I am excited to see how they do!

What I need from home:

1. Assistance in gathering information about their animal. A couple pages will come home each day.
2. Anything you and your child think will be helpful to put on the poster board next week. They have already drawn a picture of their animal. (The pictures are so good!) Here are a few OPTIONAL ideas of things to send on Tuesday, March 27th, for our project extravaganza:
 - letters to glue on (for the name of the animal)
 - printed pictures of the animal and/or their habitat
 - small decorative shapes, lines, scrapbook kind of materials
 - anything your child thinks might be helpful

Don't feel any pressure to go purchase a lot of stuff. I want to keep it simple.

Please don't hesitate to contact me with questions or concerns.
